Enrichment: Moroccan Culture. Learn how Arab, European and African influences created Morocco's captivating culture.

Monuments of Marrakech. Nestled against a stunning backdrop of the snowcapped Atlas Mountains, the exotic city of Marrakech has long been a melting pot of cultures. Today, begin your exploration at the Ben Youssef Medersa. Originally built in the 14th century, later expanded in the 16th century, the Ben Youssef Medersa once served as the largest religious schools for Islamic studies in North Africa, accommodating some 900 students at a time. Explore its exquisitely decorated courtyard and prayer hall and see some of the 130 dormitory cells that once housed the students. Continue your discovery at the shaded souks, a lively, colorful marketplace located in the heart of the city's medina. Uncover local culture while wending through the maze-like markets, passing stalls selling textiles, clothing and handicrafts. Next, thrill to the sight of Palais Bahia, a not-to-be-missed landmark. Constructed in the 19th century by architect El Mekki for Si Moussa, chamberlain of Sultan Hassan I of Morocco, the palace boasts an array of luxurious apartments, courtyards, zellij mosaic floors and serene gardens.

After your walking tour, relax over a delicious lunch, followed by some time to rest and reflect.

Early this evening, head to the beautiful Koutoubia Mosque, easily recognized by its towering minaret. Built in the 12th century, the mosque is a blend of Moorish and Islamic architecture. Continue to Jemaa el-Fnaa, a gathering place for locals and tourists and a performance space for fire-eaters, acrobats, storytellers and musicians. Over the years, this expansive main square has become the beating heart of Marrakech, showcasing a spectrum of daily life. Watch the action from above at a rooftop café; then join your guide for a walk through the square. From food stalls serving up aromatic grilled meats to amusing street performers to the melodic flutes of snake charmers, experience a feast for the senses!
